La prego, disse lei, di smettere di confondermi con tutte queste meschine idee da boudoir, con questi enigmi da corsello.

Balzac

(the Sad Sack)

1. All'inizio, era in uno sketch dei Monty Python. Spam, un prosciutto in scatola di bassa qualità (puah), che «occupa la conversazione e il menu di un piccolo ristorante» (Wikipedia). Spam è la forma contratta di spiced ham (speziato per indorare la pillola). Questo «pâté delizioso» (forse sarebbe il caso di mettere il sostantivo al femminile) venne largamente usato dall'intendenza delle forze armate americane per nutrire i propri soldati («una porcheria stancante e scoraggiante»). Generalizzando: «un oggetto ripugnante cui si preferirebbe non essere destinati.» Spam è definitivamente entrato nel vocabolario. Non era stato invitato, ma era nella sua natura (il rientrarci). In francese si può usare la parola «pourriel». «Il y a quelque chose de pourri au royaume»: c'è qualcosa di marcio nel regno. Tornando all'inglese, si può giocare sull'omofonia tra rotten («pourri», marcio) e wrote (passato remoto del verbo to write, scrivere). Non è male, però non funziona. Non si può dire «pourriel» (provateci: garantisce il Morto-Dal-Ridere). E ancor meno «polluriel», seconda mot-valise proposta.

2. Anch'io, come voi, assisto impotente a questo strano fenomeno di invasione. Però non bisogna esagerare: fenomeno, sì, strano, non più di tanto, invasione, è questione di sfintere. Della più o meno grande elasticità (stavo per scrivere: duplicità) che gli si concede.

3. Prima possibilità: ho sotto gli occhi la lista, un'occhiata, una crocetta sulla casella «tutti» (sottinteso, i messaggi) e poi «eliminare» e gli spams se ne vanno dritti al cestino. Un piacere paragonabile a quello dello sciacquone (ma non equivalente). Seconda, in germe nella prima: l'occhiata è già più insistente. Il momento dello sguardo. Terza, praticamente esclusa: lettura sistematica, se non proprio del contenuto degli spams, (per il pericolo dei virus), almeno del nome dei loro mittenti e dei loro titoli. Quarta: su questa non ho niente di speciale da dire, solo da mostr/are. Vedi sotto, tutti gli spams deposti dalla mano fantasma del sergente George Baker, creatore nel 1942 di un personaggio diventato famoso con il nome di the Sad Sack, e di cui nel 1944 una serie di disegni furono genericamente intitolati Spam.

4. Perché leggere qualcosa di così ripetitivo, di così poco interessante, penoso, stupido, se non addirittura abietto. Ma che cos'è l'interesse, che cosa vuol dire leggere, ecc. L'inventario è così lontano dall'invenzione. Dipingere non è tingere, ha detto qualcuno. Scrivere può significare ubriacare. Un mittente è legato ad un oggetto (+ data, ora, peso dello spam). Quindi su una pagina, una pagina che non si fermerà mai, ci sono due liste principali. Qui, ho deciso di prendere il testo in blocco, senza ordine né gelosie, secondo uno spirito di pura equanimità nei confronti della digitazione valutata a chilometraggio. Le liste sono mescolate. Sono state estratte delle parole, dei gruppi di parole, dei pezzi di parola. Tutto qui. Qualcosa, è una eventualità, emerge.

5. So what? Costituirsi come personaggio di una (proto)poesia, scrittore-boxeur che prova i propri colpi con lo spamming-partner... Si tratta di rendergli i suoi Ko. Non è forse vero che la poesia, come la boxe, ha bisogno di allenamento? Parigi / 3 aprile 2007
